

Does Rhinoplasty Last Forever?

Thursday, May 21, 2015 10:34 AM

If the Rhinoplasty procedure is performed by a trained surgeon and done correctly, a nose job should last forever.

If a rhinoplasty procedure is performed by a trained surgeon and done correctly, a nose job should last forever. You've probably seen celebrities after a nose job and the results can be truly amazing, which is why rhinoplasty has been the top cosmetic procedure in the US and worldwide for 5 years in a row. A successful rhinoplasty can correct many concerns including an oversized nose, crooked or off-center, reduce a hump and fix breathing problems.

Unfortunately, some patients wake up from a rhinoplasty surgery only for their nightmare to begin. They're unhappy with the results. This is a huge problem since the nose is the focal point of the face. Living with a botched nose job puts it front and center for everyone to see. This is not a rare occurrence. According to a recent study by the American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery, revision work accounts for up to 27% of all facial surgical procedures. Manhattan facial cosmetic surgeon, Dr. Sam Rizk, is an expert in primary and revision rhinoplasty procedures and offers hope for patients seeking correction for a rhinoplasty gone wrong.

Patients travel from around the world for Dr. Rizk's artistic, advanced surgical techniques and the results make him a leader in both rhinoplasty and revision rhinoplasty. Dr. Rizk uses 3D High Definition technology as well as powered micro-instruments to smooth out cartilage edges and reduce nasal humps. The result is a more precise, natural looking nose. In addition, afterward, there's less bruising and recovery time is one third.